Front End Developer with First Event

First Event is a UK leading Event Company that helps teams create incredible events around the globe. This is a great chance with lots of opportunity to help provide further development to a company which has shown excellent rates of growth over the past few years. In response to the global pandemic, First Event has expanded its offering in innovative online event solutions, including the development of a new Virtual Events department, to deal with demand.

We are recruiting for a Front End Developer to join our established Design team. The role will be responsible for building both static HTML sites and WordPress sites – depending on our client’s requirements and for all taking ownership of web design; taking projects from initial mock up stages right through to build and live stages.

The role will work closely with our Product Owner when new projects are being brought into the team. The ideal candidate will be an experienced front end developer with some back end experience.

This will be a fast-paced role which will often require you to work independently - however, you will be part of our Design team comprising talented individuals with diverse expertise and experience.

Main duties and responsibilities.

- Taking ownership of all aspects of web design.
- Liaising with internal account managers and on occasion clients to ensure all requirements are met.
- Create mock-ups of websites for feedback and sign off.
- Own projects from mock-up stage, through to build and live stage.
- Take ownership of building both static HTML sites and WordPress site – depending on what the client requires.
- Ability to juggle multiple projects.
- Helping the design team with non-web related projects if needed.

Coding languages:

- HTML
- CSS3 / SCSS / LESS
- PHP desirable
- JAVASCRIPT desirable
